Question or Comment:

I need advice and I don't know where to get it. I decided to get breast implants due to my saggy breasts from breast feeding. I have had to change the implants a couple times for problems with scar tissue and a rupture. I have begun to have medical problems that the doctors cannot figure out. I feel like crap and am starting to believe it is from my implants. Some doctors say that there is no connection and others say that there is. I am so confused I don't know what to do or what to believe. Can you offer any advice on this subject?

Do you have a surgeon that you recommend? I don't care where, I will travel. I don't trust any of these doctors anymore.
