

----- Original Message -----

Subject: Re: [Fwd: Re:]

From: JayPaulDeratany@aol.com

Date: Thu, December 14, 2006 11:37 am

To: shellie@victimtwice.com

Shellie,

Spencer is a strange man and I have no contact with him except that he recently wanted to hire me relative to an auto accident--(which, if he did this then I would have to withdraw) I did let him draw up a few draft questions in your case, but at that point he was only doing some ad hoc work in order to explore if he wanted to go to law school. Regardless he is not my employee and of course I will strongly urge that anything be taken down. I am truly sorry that anyone would do that to you---I did ask him and he denied it but if you have an investigator then certainly that would rebut his statement. I also googled your name but the only sites that came up was victimtwice and the blog, so I have not found any hard core porn linked to your name.

I am sorry that he even knew about the website and blog ---I also do not know what information he put on his blog, but I will pull it up. I can assure you that he never knew anything about your case that wasnt at the trial itself---he attended the trial but he did not see the file or any other materials.

I don't blame you for prosecuting anyone who would do that--and again, I am sorry that so much negativity has come between us.

Jay